Do Well and Do Good: The Soul of Saint Michael's

Saint Michael's College believes that the world requires people equipped to do well and driven to do good. The most complex problems humanity faces will be solved by well-educated, well prepared individuals who are motivated by more than personal success and wish to contribute to something larger than themselves.

By honing skills, knowledge, and experience, we gain the confidence necessary to make a real impact. By combining the academic studies and career preparation received at Saint Michael's College together with our values of peace, justice, and service, our graduates are ready to truly uplift the human condition.

That's what it means to do well and do good. To live successful lives of purpose and consequence.

Academics

We are a liberal arts university, which means students will be intellectually stimulated and inspired by a variety of disciplines in addition to their major field of study. We believe in flexibility so that you can pursue a second major or multiple minors at no additional cost. Students needing English receive the training they need—while earning credits. Our graduates are prepared not only for their first job, but for an employment marketplace that is constantly evolving.

Do well and do good

As the only Edmundite university in the world, we dedicate ourselves to creating a more just world. And we welcome everyone who wants to do the same. Students learn to put values into action at St. Mike's and participate meaningfully in their community. We are welcoming to every faith background, and identity.

Burlington, Vermont

Our location is the ideal place to attend university. Burlington is a beautiful small city located between Lake Champlain and the Green Mountains.

The size ensures that everything is within reach--from meaningful internships and job opportunities to working on restoring ecosystems, to outdoor adventure. We are close to Montreal in and Boston.
